HIBA TAKIDDINE

LISENCED EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGIST

MOTIVATIONAL LETTER

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to introduce myself, Hiba Takiddine, a 42-years-old individual who possesses an unwavering determination and a positive outlook on life. As a mother of four children, , I am committed to setting a profound example of resilience and growth for my family.

My journey is characterized by facing challenges. When I embarked on the path of marriage, I held only a high school diploma. However, I made a decision in 2016 to pursue higher education and fulfill my goal of attaining a university degree. This marked the beginning of my academic pursuit in psychology at the Lebanese University. In 2019, I successfully obtained my Bachelor of Arts degree, solidifying my academic foundation.

Undeterred by the rigors of my responsibilities, I continued to elevate my knowledge and expertise. I pursued a master's degree program in school psychology at the Lebanese University, a journey that culminated in the acquisition of my master's degree in 2023.. Moreover, my pursuit of excellence led me to undertake a specialized diploma in social science from the Lebanese University also.

Reflecting on my transformation, I take great pride in my accomplishments. The stark contrast between my former self and the individual I have become fuels my sense of achievement. I am a firm believer in the continuous process of self-improvement and growth. This character is reflected in my active participation in workshops and jobs, in addition to active reading. I believe that true education extends beyond the confines of a classroom.

With a deep commitment to mental health, personal growth, and human resilience, I believe psychology is not only a profession but a powerful tool for healing and transformation.
Well, throughout my academic and professional journey, I have been consistently drawn to the human mind — its complexity, vulnerability, and capacity for change. My trainings has provided me with a solid foundation in both theory and practice, enabling me to support individuals struggling with emotional, behavioral, and psychological challenges.

After the years of internship and the 3 years working with ngo ,I have worked with children, adolescents, and adults (caregivers, teachers,employees). across diverse backgrounds. These experiences have shaped my approach: empathetic, evidence-based, and culturally sensitive. I strive to create a safe and non-judgmental space where clients feel seen, heard, and empowered to take steps toward well-being.

I strongly believe that mental health is a human right, and I am committed to advocating for accessible, compassionate care.

I am eager to contribute my knowledge, compassion, and unwavering dedication to your team while continuing to grow both personally and professionally.

Psychology is not only my career — it is my passion and purpose.
Thank you for considering my application. I would be honored to be part of your mission and look forward to the opportunity to contribute meaningfully to your work.

In essence, my journey highlights the belief that “if you can dream it, you can do it. “

Best Regards,
Hiba Takiddine
